Cornwallis reached Wilmington on 7 April, then marched into Virginia. Lafayette delayed and harassed Cornwallis in Virginia until the British force retired behind defenses at Yorktown.

By year's end Greene had regained the entire Southland except for English enclaves at Charleston and Savannah.