CONTINENTIALS
Fought well except for left flank regiment and retired in good order.

VA. Militia fought well, especially left-flank units.

N.C. Militia flanked by picked light troops. Militia fired two volley and withdrew as at Cowpens but could not be rallied.

Note: Cornwallis made a frontal attack immediately after a twelve-mile march, bringing his rear units forward into line as his front widened and holding out only his cavalry as a reserve. Despite severe losses, the British pressed their assault until Greene decided to withdraw.

CORNWALLIS
(1,900)

Note: Cornwallis made a frontal attack immediately after a twelve-mile march, bringing his rear units forward into line as his front widened and holding out only his cavalry as a reserve. Despite severe losses, the British pressed their assault until Greene decided to withdraw.

CORNWALLIS
(1,900)

Note: Cornwallis made a frontal attack immediately after a twelve-mile march, bringing his rear units forward into line as his front widened and holding out only his cavalry as a reserve. Despite severe losses, the British pressed their assault until Greene decided to withdraw.

CORNWALLIS
(1,900)

Note: Cornwallis made a frontal attack immediately after a twelve-mile march, bringing his rear units forward into line as his front widened and holding out only his cavalry as a reserve. Despite severe losses, the British pressed their assault until Greene decided to withdraw.