Say you have a mutilated chessboard, much akin to the one pictured above. Is it possible to place 31 dominoes on the board so that all the remaining 62 squares are covered? Dominoes are places so that they cover adjacent squares, so no diagonally placed dominoes. If so, show how it can be done. If not, prove it impossible.